Embraced by God through Jesus Christ our Lord, we share this gospel of hope and healing within and throughout our community

Now faith is the assurance of things hoped for, the conviction of things not seen. <sup>2</sup> For by it the people of old received their commendation. <sup>3</sup> By faith we understand that the universe was created by the word of God, so that what is seen was not made out of things that are visible... (Hebrews 11:1-3)

Many of us remember, perhaps as a child, reading the book, The Lion, the Witch, and the Wardrobe. This fantastic tale would go on to become part of a larger series called the Chronicles of Narnia. However, it started off simply, as a set of images appearing one day in the mind of author C. S. Lewis. The lamppost in a wintry forest, the queen in her sleigh, the powerful and majestic lion, all of these could have been common enough elements in any fantasy novel. Yet, it quickly became apparent to Lewis and others that something more was revealing itself in layer after layer of the story. He later wrote, "At first there wasn't anything Christian about them; that element pushed itself in of its own accord." To this day, theologians, literary scholars, and children alike still enjoy unpacking this story and the Christian messages within.

In addition to the winter setting and the various themes that can be connected to Christ, there is something else about the nature of the writing itself that makes this book distinctly suited to Advent. Think of all the prophetic images and event that lead up to Jesus's birth. The verses above, from Hebrews 11, begin a long list of well-known people and events, in which God was present and foreshadowing the reality of the wonderful yet not yet visible story to come. Think of how many times the ancient Hebrew people familiar with such past events must have wondered, when will God's promises be fulfilled, how will they be fulfilled, and what shape will they take? The marks of God on His people and creation should have given even unbelievers a sense of God's nature and what was coming. Yet, what a surprise... what a gloriously humble, quietly powerful, amazing thing took place that first Christmas and the days and months leading up to it. For centuries God set the groundwork then, all of sudden, with announcement of angels and a baby's cry, the God of the Universe, the Savior, Immanuel, was laying there amidst the straw of a cattle stall. Looking back, it's hard to imagine the sheer awe and wonder of being a part of it all.

Yet here too, Christ's footprints in Narnia, help us to experience Advent, anew. For those of us who have already spent many years encountering the themes of Advent and Christmas, I think we sometimes lose sight of some of the wonder of the season. The virgin birth, God humbly becoming a real human child, the plan of salvation already in place since the beginning of time, all of this should boggle the mind. Yet, for many of us, I think such things can somehow become both familiar and yet at the same time distant. We are able to describe them in detail, yet have not really seen most of them directly. As Heidi Haverkamp, puts it in her devotional book, Advent in Narnia, Reflections for the season:

"Too often, Christianity may seem to be a known quantity. We can take its radical values for granted and see Jesus as a cliché instead of our Savior. Lewis, by placing Christianity into another world, makes it unfamiliar again. He gives us the chance to feel a newfound wonder at the depth of God's love, the power of Christ's grace and the totality of his sacrifice, and the wonder of a world infused with the Holy Spirit. We all can use a spiritual wake-up call like this, whether we aren't sure Christianity can mean anything to us or whether it means everything."

I hope you will join with me and some of the themes and characters of Narnia, during our Wednesday Advent Meditations, as we go into the snow and the forest to experience afresh the power, wonder, and the depth of God's love found in the manger, the cross, and the empty tomb. After all, the one you encounter means everything.

In Christ Jesus,

Pastor Eric Schoeck
